CÆSARISM

[From the N Y Times]

The anxiety of the New York Herald to see Gen. Grant nominated for a third term has been shown by its repeated discussions of that subject—discussions which could only have the effect of reconciling those who paid any attention to them to the "third term" idea The Herald's intellectual department half native and half foreign, has now received its usual summer's commission to report the President's movements Accordingly the na tives and foreigners "shadowed" him to Cape May, and kept a sharp eye upon his move ments. The intellectual department found that the President was looking well He appeared to be worried in mind and body — as a man chased by two or three Herald re porters is very apt to be He walked on the sand alone—the intellectual department hav ing first dug sand pits from which it might conveniently watch him When the time came for the President to go away he caught a little girl by the wrist and asked for a kiss She positively refused The natives and for eigners go on to describe what followed

"Then I'll have to hold you in this way un til the car starts," said the President

"Well," returned the little one "you can do so if you wish

"Yes, but in case I do as soon as the car starts it will drag you along with it

"Well, I don't care," said the girl "you can't have a kiss, anyhow

Just hear this little lady talk gentlemen said the President to his companions Here is a little creature who would be dragged along after this car rather than give me a kiss

The President held on to the hand and the youngster held on at the same time to her re solve Presently her mother spoke a word to her, and she, reluctantly giving the kiss was released Turning to one of her small friends she said

"Mother made me do that He might have dragged me all the way to Camden

The President is old enough to know better than to go about the country kissing girls against their will This is Cæsarism if you like! Even our daughters are not safe now We earnestly trust that the Herald will once more sound what it calls the tocsin, and rouse the country to a true sense of its danger from the profligate despot who now stalks through the halls of the White House

HEAVY BIDDING—An auction at Ashton Crossing Iowa, not long since, was marked by some rather forcible bidding which is des cribed as follows Two men made the same bid on a piece of property and it was struck off, both claiming it and a quarrel ensued A son of one of the bidders seized the other by the beard, put a revolver in his mouth and fired, the ball passing out of his neck The wounded man drew a revolver and shot his assailant in the side. A second son rushed in, and the first wounded man started to run and fell, when the man with whom he quarreled seized him and attempted to cut his throat The parties were arrested, although the man first attacked was set at liberty."

THE BEECHER-TILTON SCANDAL

NEW YORK June [illegible]—Among the documents which Theodore Tilton includes in his long open letter to Rev Dr Leonard Bacon on what is commonly known as the Beecher Tilton scandal is the following dated May 1 1871

T H[illegible] [illegible]—S[illegible] [illegible] B Carpen ter mentions to me your saying to him that under certain conditions my dying [illegible] avowals by me a sum of money would or could be [illegible] to [illegible] me with my family to Europe for a term of years This compels me to state explicitly that so long as life and self respect continue to exist together in my breast I shall be debarred from receiving either directly or indirectly any presents or other favors at your hands The reason for this feeling on my part you know so well that I will spare you the statement of it

THEO TILTON

Tilton follows this with a reference to what he declares a fact that although he had receiv ed from the clerk of Plymouth Church on the 18th of May a communication announcing that his (Tilton's) offer to appear for trial had been read by Rev Halliday the assistant pastor of Plymouth Church and submitted to the examining committee by whom it had been rejected Halliday had some forty days after ward emphatically denied to several newspaper reporters that such an offer had ever been re ceived and branded the whole story as false from beginning to end In his speech he characterized Beecher as the most magnani mous of men and referred to Tilton as a dog and knave leading the public to infer that the latter was in some way the creature of Beech er's bounty Tilton says he called Beecher's attention to the offensiveness of this statement and insisted on a correction by that gentleman or himself Tilton closes the letter to Bacon as follows If the public have heretofore considered my silence as inexplicable let my sufficient motive be now seen in the just forbearance which I felt morally bound to show to a man who had sent me a written and absolute apology but my duty to continue this forbearance ceased when the spirit of that apology was violated to my injury by its au thor or his agent These violations have been multitudinous and they threaten to multiply in future forcing me to protect myself against them in advance particularly against the cunning device of the clerk of the church who acting as attorney appears to be conduct ing this business

WHAT HENRY C BOWEN'S PAPER SAYS

BROOKLYN June 29—The Brooklyn Eagle this afternoon publishes a full history of the scandal, from which the following extracts are taken and which contain the material parts of the statements published in the Golden Age "Tilton withdrew from Plymouth Church about January 1 1871 in consequence of a knowledge obtained by him that he had suf fered what he terms a grave offense at the hands of Mr Beecher Tilton shows that Beecher himself confessed the offense ending in a frank confession and acknowledgment on one side, and an equally frank forgiveness on the other But two or three persons knew of the cause of his withdrawal from the church It was however retailed to Mrs Victoria Woodhull, who at this time was incensed against both Beecher and Tilton through whose instrumentality the scandal was made notorious Woodhull's story was published in November 1872, and charged Beecher with having been criminally intimate with Mrs Tilton It alleged that children living and dead, were the fruits of this guilty union that Tilton was forgivingly cognizant of that rela tionship and that Mr Tilton Mrs Paulina W Davis and Mrs Elizabeth Cady Stanton had told her these facts and that Beecher admitted them Proceedings to imprison Woodhull followed but resulted in her discharge Beecher and Tilton

DID NOT DENY THESE CHARGES

The latter because as he said he had promised Beecher to remain silent The Eagle affects to disbelieve the more serious charge against Beecher and gives what it considers is the real offense to which Mr Beecher refers in his con fession as follows

Tilton probably discovered from Mrs Til ton that Beecher made to her an improper over ture in her own parlor while calling upon her as a pastor The overture was not mistakable It was repelled with indignation and scorn and after retaining the subject in her own mind for some time Mrs Tilton was finally constrained to tell her husband

Mr Beecher is now on his farm at Peekskill and to day teachers children and friends of Plymouth Sunday School go there to congrat ulate their pastor on the occurrence of his sixty first birthday

THE BAVARIAN POLICY —A London dispatch of June 25th says A dispatch to the [illegible] from Paris says it is asserted there that the King of Bavaria will be summoned to Kissingen to meet Prince Bismarck who will remonstrate with him against the separation tendency of the Bavarian policy If the King is obdurate a council of German royalties will be convened to consider the matter probably with the view of obtaining the abdication of King Ludwig and the enthronement of a more subservient rela tive

HYDROPHOBIA

A REMARKABLE CASE IN NEW YORK

A [illegible] from New York [illegible] Concurrently with the arrival of every June [illegible] Trustee [illegible] issues orders [illegible] ordinances to [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] of the world [illegible] The object [illegible] of course to prevent hydrophobia One common [illegible] is that hydro phobia is a disease peculiar to dogs during the hot months and capable of transmission by them to other animals Another equally com mon [illegible] asserts that it is a disease of the cold as well as the hot months and that the so called hydrophobia of human beings is only a nerv ous disorder superinduced by fear

This latter theory has received a pretty severe blow within two or three days from this city [illegible] Butler a man of superior edu cation [illegible] began the business of training and healing dogs in this city about twenty years ago—He was an Englishman and had been connected with several educational institutions as professor of languages He be gan the business because of his love for the animals In his shop could be found any breed from a King Charles' spaniel to a Siber ian bloodhound He wrote a popular book entitled "Dog Training" and his skill in controlling the animals was marvelous Of ten has he led without resistance ferocious dogs that attacked every one else who ap proached them Throughout his life he has expressed the utmost contempt of hydropho bia and has always asserted that in men it was only a nervous excitement brought on by fear Six weeks ago a small spitz dog which was sick was brought to Mr Butler to receive the best care While he was administering the first dose of medicine the animal bit the thumb of his right hand so as to draw blood He had the wound dressed and soon forgot the occurrence In taking the animal to Mr Butler's Broadway office next day it escaped and bit the man in the leg and was subse quently shot by a policeman

Last Monday morning Mr Butler attempted to drink some tea at the breakfast table and found that his muscles would not obey his will He said to his wife I can't get my cup to my lips What ails me? She told him his nerves were disordered He tried to eat but failed and a few hours afterwards in disputable symptoms of hydrophobia were rec ognized He ran about the house and tried to strike and bite every one he could get at tore his clothing to shreds and bit his fingers into the flesh Physicians were called and af ter a severe struggle secured him and injected morphine in his arm which checked the par oxysm He lost the power of speech and thenceforward barked like a dog His tongue hung from his mouth and foam was on his lips On Tuesday night he died yelping and growling like the most ferocious of his pets He was 61 years old and leaves a wife and nine children Surely this man was not the victim of fear —[illegible]

[Special Dispatch to the Chicago Tribune]

WASHINGTON June 15—The National Re publican of this city the Administration or gan prints this morning, as a special dispatch from San Francisco an editorial from the Alta California of yesterday, commenting on the anticipated veto of the Conference Committee's Currency bill When it is known that special dispatches from the Pacific coast costs 13 cents a word in this city that the Republican except in extreme cases does not indulge in the luxury of specials even from New York or Philadel phia that Senator Jones is a Democrat at heart a large holder of stock of the Alta Cal ifornia newspaper and the favored confidential adviser of the President when all these facts are taken into consideration then the follow ing extract from the editorial special in ques tion may be regarded as significant

About all the Democrats will sustain such veto and New York and New England mem bers generally will sustain the veto Out of this a new party may come forth or a change of candidates Would it not be curious if President Grant became the candidate of the Democratic party and the hard money Re publicans at the next Presidential election

One of the incidents of the Old Abolition ists reunion in Chicago was the story related of Jonathan Walker or "The Man with the Branded Hand" now living in Muskegan Ohio at the advanced age of 77 years and in such straitened circumstances that he could not afford to be with them in person as he was in spirit Walker was branded in his right hand with the letters "S S" meaning slave stealer in 1843 by order of the United States Marshal for the District of Florida for aiding slaves to escape from bondage His story was told in the Convention and a goodly amount of money subscribed and sent to him

THE LEGERDEMAIN EXECUTIVE PROF HERRMANN —The wonderful prestidigitateur Prof Herr mann was formally presented to the President to day and was very cordially received As is the want of the Professor he played some pranks with the President who enjoyed the joke with a keen relish and looked as though he would like to have such a Secretary of the Treas ury to resume specie payment with the same rapidity as the Professor made manifest gold and silver coin in whatever he touched with his magic hand —[illegible]

A MONUMENT TO LOVEJOY —Chicago June 12 The Abolitionists reunion has closed A resolution recommending the erection of a monument to Elijah J Lovejoy and urging that as he died in defense of the liberty of the press this duty should be undertaken by the printers and journalists of the country

A memorial resolution in honor of Charles Sumner was unanimously adopted After ar ranging to hold an annual reunion of a similar character the meeting adjourned sine die

The Hon John P Irish of Iowa having been presented [illegible] a nomination to Con gress on the Anti Monopoly ticket in Iowa has declined He says he is willing to serve the country in any other way than by accepting office The Western country is not overrun by politicians of this order It is fair to pre sume that Mr Irish is sincere

WATER FROM THE PACIFIC FOR ST LOUIS —The St Louis Globe of June 20th says The salt water desired by the Commit tee in the programme for use at the dedication of the new St Louis bridge on the 4th proximo was forwarded by express yesterday morning over [illegible] in a [illegible] champagne bottle

MISSOURI DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION —A St Louis dispatch of June 18th says The Democratic State Central Committee met here yesterday afternoon and determined to call a State Convention at Jefferson City on August 26th for the purpose of nominating a State ticket

NOMINATIONS FOR CONGRESSMEN IN PENNSYL VANIA —Philadelphia dispatches of June 24th say Charles O'Neill has been nominated for Congressman in the Second District In the First Congressional District Republican Con vention Chapman Freeman was to day nomi nated for Congress

Hair taken from the tails of the famous cows belonging to the Smith sisters of Glaston bury Conn has been made into two bouquets, one of which has been presented to Miss Abby and her sister and the other is for sale at a fair in Hartford

At the hurdle race at Barnum's Hippo drome June 25th one of the horses fell in at tempting to clear one of the hurdles, and broke his neck His rider Miss Cushman was trampled upon by other horses and seriously injured

One of the leading Helena grocers houses recently sent an order to St Paul for 500 sacks of XXXX Minnesota flour—probably the best brand of bread-stuff manufactured in the United States The estimated cost of the shipment laid down in Helena is about $7 per sack of 100 pounds The venture is made as an ex periment to ascertain whether flour of this quality can find a market at this time with a margin of profit At present rates of transpor tation there is a difference of twenty cents a sack in favor of Minnesota over California adopting the new route via Northern Pacific and Musselshell

THE RAILROAD BRIDGE BILL

We do not know nor can we imagine what manner of defense the friends and advocates of the Railroad Bridge project can possibly make against the charge that the bill whose passage was announced from Washington last Thursday by Senator Mitchell was smuggled through the Senate. That such is the case there can be little doubt. The surprise with which that announcement was met in this city indicates pretty surely that those who have the best right to know and who attempt to keep themselves informed concerning all the measures affecting the material interests of Portland were unaware that such a measure was pending in Congress and of course utterly ignorant of its provisions. For the reason that no one could give or get any information on the bill the objections hitherto stated in the OREGONIAN were necessarily general in their character. We have been unable to learn aught beyond the scanty information contained in the excerpt from the Congressional Record of June 18th, which we publish below.

The history of the bill in the Senate is very brief. On the 17th inst Mr Chandler of Michigan, Chairman of the Committee on Commerce, moved to proceed to the consideration of Senate bill No 775. The motion was agreed to and the bill (S 775) to authorize the construction of a bridge over the Willamette river at Portland, in the State of Oregon, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. We quote from the official report of the proceedings.

The Committee on Commerce proposed to amend the bill by inserting at the end of section 1 the words:

Provided further, That the said bridge shall be so constructed and built as not to obstruct, impair or injuriously affect the navigation of the river; and in order to secure a compliance with these conditions the corporation, association or company proposing to erect the same, previous to commencing the construction of the bridge, shall submit to the Secretary of War a plan of the bridge, with a detailed map of the river at the proposed site of the bridge and for the distance of a mile above and below the site, exhibiting the depths and currents at all points of the same, together with all other information touching said bridge and river as may be deemed requisite by the Secretary of War to determine whether the said bridge, when built, will conform to the prescribed conditions of the act not to obstruct, impair or injuriously affect the navigation of the river: Provided further, That the Secretary of War may detail an officer to superintend the survey and examination of said river with a view to said location.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was to insert the following as section 2:

SECTION 2. That the Secretary of War is hereby authorized and directed, upon receiving said plan and map and other information, and upon being satisfied that a bridge built on such a plan and at said locality will conform to the prescribed conditions of this act not to obstruct, impair or injuriously affect the navigation of said river, to notify the said corporation, association or company proposing to erect the same that he approves the same; and upon receiving such notification the corporation, association or company may proceed to the erection of said bridge, conforming strictly to the approved plan and location. But until the Secretary of War approve the plan and location of said bridge and notify the said corporation, association or company of the same, the bridge shall not be built or commenced.

The amendment was agreed to. The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

This comprises all that can at present be ascertained. A gentleman who is prominently connected with railway enterprises in this State has said, so we are informed, that the bill passed the House four or five weeks ago. This cannot be true—because the bill above referred to is a Senate bill, and could not have reached the House before it passed the Senate—unless indeed, Mr Nesmith introduced a similar bill. This simultaneous introduction of the same bill in both houses is a common practice. In such a case the house which deals with the measure last strikes its own bill from the calendar. The amendments to the Railroad Bridge bill adopted by the Senate would have to be passed upon by the House, and there remained after the 17th inst, but four days of the session. It is to be hoped that our Representative procured a postponement or a final rejection of the bill. We do not believe that Senator Chandler was a party to the injurious transaction as far as hurrying the bill through is concerned. The amendments submitted by him show a desire to guard all the interests liable to be injuriously affected. We trust, at all events, that the bill has not yet received the signature of the President. When the full text shall have reached us we may be prepared to consider it to better advantage.

THE BEECHER TILTON SCANDAL AGAIN

Since the reopening of the lamentable unpleasantness between the pastor of Plymouth Church and the editor of the Golden Age, the newspapers are beginning to reproduce the story of Mr Beecher's alleged "youthful indiscretion" as first given to the world in Woodhull & Claflin's Weekly. It is not our purpose at present to republish the narrative. While we would in no wise feel disposed to screen Mr Beecher from the consequences of his crime (if the charges against him be true), we cannot, nor can the public, in justice to all concerned make up a verdict. It is true that Mr Tilton's recent publication throws upon Mr Beecher the grievous responsibility of proving his innocence. And the silence of the latter is almost inexplicable on any other hypothesis than that of his guilt. This, we are aware, is putting it pretty strongly; but, as we regard the case, the pastor of Plymouth Church owes a duty to that society which has for so many years paid him such homage as is seldom accorded to any teacher. If he be entirely innocent he should say so at once, and by suitable proof put the matter forever at rest. He cannot afford to remain dumb after this last disclosure. This is not the example left by the Great Teacher. Never when Pharisee or Sadducee made false accusations against him did he fail to justify himself. It will be strange indeed if the Examiners of Plymouth Church do not ask Mr Beecher to vindicate himself.

Rev Leonard Bacon, however, takes a different view of the case—or he did before the appearance of Tilton's letter at least. In a recent number of the Independent he published a communication in which he praised Mr Beecher's forbearance with extravagant fervor and said that Plymouth Church did its pastor gross injustice in allowing the charges to remain unanswered. With this he coupled a fierce attack on Theodore Tilton. Thereupon Tilton sent to the Trustees of Plymouth Church a communication notifying them that he would be pleased to appear before them as a witness at any time within thirty days from date. The offer was declined and Tilton, still suffering keenly as he must from Bacon's attack, published in the Golden Age the seven column article which again brought the matter to the public mind.

The issue of this controversy must be disastrous to one reputation at least. Mr Beecher cannot forever remain silent. If a correspondent of the Boston Saturday Evening Gazette is to be believed Plymouth Church is already on the verge of mutiny. We quote from his letter:

Plymouth Church is outwardly a unit, but has much inner discord, and some day when least expected perhaps this discord and its cause must be revealed to the world. Men well informed are guarded in their statements. But unless all signs fail the pillars of Plymouth Church will at no distant day be found cracking, as if from an earthquake, and the fire from which all the smoke of the past two years has arisen, and which there has been so much effort to stifle, will leap up in lurid splendor and consuming ferocity.

Perhaps Mr Beecher's congregation will pass these grave accusations by in silence. If they do it will not be because of their implicit trust in their pastor. Meanwhile the busybodies of the press will make themselves heard in every part of the land. Tilton and Beecher will have their adherents and the war will continue until one of the chief combatants shall succumb.

MR MULLETT

This time it is Mr A B Mullett, Supervising Architect of the Treasury, who has got his name into the papers. First of all he figures prominently in a difficulty with Senator John A Logan, of Illinois. In a conference with Secretary Bristow and Senator Logan he gives the latter a cursing and calls down upon himself a rebuke from his superior who intimates in the velvety language of diplomacy that a repetition of the offense will cost him (Mullett) his position. Secondly, our morning dispatches open up a promising vista of exploration for Mr Jeremiah Wilson, the great investigator of the House. Mr Mullett secured to the Bain Granite Company a contract to furnish granite for the Cincinnati Custom House. The compensation—79 cents per foot—seemed ridiculously low until it was ascertained that there was another contract back of this. This second contract relates to the cutting of the stone. The Government is to supply the Bain Granite Company with yard room and workmen who are to be paid by the Government. The Company is to pay 15 per cent of the cost—the Government 85 per cent. The balance sheet will show, it is said, a clear profit of one dollar per foot on the whole transaction, for the Company. How Sawyer's mouth must water when he thinks how narrowly he escaped a share in this good thing!

Mullett's history is getting obscured. Yet it will be noticed that he does not go back on the ancient value of his name. In Rome the mullet was one of the choicest as well as costliest dishes of the epicure:

Six thousand sesterces the wise man paid;
Three scanty pounds the mullet weighed.

No one can tell yet just how many sesterces our Mullett has cost the American people. It remains for Mr Wilson to find out that.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURTS TERMS

Our morning contemporary publishes a list of bills that, failing of passage at the recent session of Congress, must go over to the next session, and among them we notice the 'Bill to establish the times for holding the United States Circuit Courts in California, Oregon and Nevada.' This is an error. The bill referred to did pass both Houses of Congress, and in the Congressional Record of June 17th we find this entry:

A message from the President of the United States by Mr O E Babcock his Secretary announced that the President had on this day (June 16) approved and signed the following acts: An act fixing the time of holding the Circuit Court of the United States in the Districts of California, Oregon and Nevada.

The act takes effect July 1 and fixes the terms as follows: San Francisco—The second Mondays in February, July and December; Portland—Second Mondays in April, August and November; Carson—Second Mondays in March, June and October. The act provides for a new term at San Francisco commencing on the second Monday in July, and a term at Portland on the second Monday in August next, but at Carson there will not be another term till the second Monday in October.

From a time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary it has been customary for the average legislator to take with him on his exit from public life as mementoes of his service to the people all those articles which constitute the furniture of a member during a session. These are the gifts of the State to her lawmakers—donations of pencils, penholders, pens, scissors, knives, pots of mucilage and indeterminate quantities of blotting pad, legal cap and other stationery. It is seldom indeed that the Sergeant at Arms is not laid under contribution just before the close of the session. It could be otherwise only in the Model Republic. Here in Oregon the members have always left their desks—to their credit be it said. We believe there is no more than one well authenticated instance in which the harmless larceny included a stove. In the face of a custom so venerable it is mournful to read that the members of the Legislature of the District of Columbia have been plundered—made to disgorge the hard earned perquisites.

An execution having issued in the case of a furniture dealer against the District a bailiff proceeded to the House of Delegates on the 24th inst and made a levy, taking possession of the furniture and effects of the House. Some property had previously been taken from the hall by retiring members as a joke, they said, but which they were seriously required to return.

Such jokes have always been very common.

The Rhode Island Legislature has given up the election of a United States Senator as a bad job for the present. It adjourned on the 25th inst after another ineffectual ballot to meet again in January.

PULLMAN'S PALACE CARS FOR ITALY.—A Milan dispatch of June 25th says: A fifteen year contract was definitely closed here to day for putting Pullman palace cars on all the trains and lines of upper Italy. This covers the great routes of pleasure travel and the northern lakes. The press highly compliments American progress, and Director General Amilhau on his enterprising appreciation of the public wants.

STATE CERTIFICATES AND DIPLOMAS

COMMUNICATION FROM THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION—MEETING OF THE STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

SALEM June 27 1874

A regular meeting of the State Board of Education will be held at the office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction at Salem on Monday July 6 1874 at 2 o'clock P M for the purpose of examining candidates for such diplomas and certificates as the Board is authorized to grant and for the transaction of other business.

Applicants for life diplomas and State diplomas must present to the Board satisfactory evidence of good moral character, of marked success in teaching for at least three years, the last of which must have been in this State, and must pass a thorough examination in orthography, reading, arithmetic, mental arithmetic, English grammar, geography, United States history, general history, algebra, geometry, book keeping, physiology, natural philosophy, composition, English literature, Constitution of the United States, Constitution and school law of the State of Oregon, and theory and practice of teaching. An average standing of 90 per cent in the examination in all these branches will entitle the candidate to a life diploma, and an average standing of 75 per cent will entitle him to a State diploma.

Candidates for State Certificates of the first and second grades must present satisfactory evidence of good moral character and of success in teaching for a period of six months and must pass a thorough examination in all the branches of study above named excepting general history, geometry, natural philosophy, composition, English literature and Constitution of the United States. To obtain a certificate of the first grade the candidate must have an average standing of 90 per cent in examination, and to obtain a certificate of the second grade he must have an average of 75 per cent.

All the examinations will be conducted as far as possible in writing and ten questions will be asked in each branch.

Candidates must report themselves to the State Superintendent promptly at 2 o'clock P M on the day of examination.

Papers please copy.

THE FEE QUESTION

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Your correspondent 'People' wants a fixed salary for the officers of Multnomah county, and if for one, the change should be extended to all the larger counties of the State. There can be no objection to this provided the Legislature has the power. I do not know that it has or has not. Before such change is entered upon it ought to be known that it will be Constitutional. Otherwise the Courts may set aside the law and return us to the present exorbitant rates of fees. But in that event there should also be a sweeping reduction of fees. They should be put at such figures as would pay the salaries established, certainly, and not any more than would assuredly pay the salaries. The citizen who has business with the Clerks or Sheriffs should not be compelled to pay five prices, the surplus to go into the County Treasury. If so, why not fifty prices and raise all the county revenue that way? Would that be the equal taxation the Constitution enjoins? Let the citizen pay a fair price for the service the officer performs for him and no more.

The trouble about the smaller counties is imaginary. There is no county so small that the offices of Clerk and Sheriff are not sought after, and reduce fees to a uniform low rate and they will still be sought after. If but few fees are received but little labor is performed. It is not necessary in the small counties that the officer shall follow no other employment. From one-third to one half of the fees now received by the Clerks and Sheriffs are paid from the county treasuries, the remaining half or two thirds by individuals. If 'People's' law requiring fees to be paid into the treasury shall be passed it will be found that the officer will tax them up much less than he does now when they go into his own pocket. Numerous charges now made would be abandoned, and when the officer is now getting $10 000 the county would get not more than five or seven.

Steamer due to-night.

Steamer due this evening.

Two days' Eastern mail last night.

Where are you going on the Fourth?

Ho, for the sea-side, or some shady nook.

Last evening the Emmet Guard had a street drill.

The steamer California will sail for Sitka to-morrow.

Donald McKay and his Indian are in Washington, D. C.

Off yesterday morning for the Capital—Maguire's Minstrels.

You can send postal cards now to Switzerland for two cents.

Large quantities of wool are now arriving from up the Columbia river.

East Portland enjoyed an expensive runaway yesterday. A dray was sacrificed.

The bark Eimi sailed from San Francisco on the 25th inst. She will be due in a few days.

If the present weather continues we may anticipate a satisfactory atmosphere on Saturday.

The County Court was in session yesterday, closing up all old accounts. Their labors will cease to-day.

The jurors have all been discharged from further attendance on the Circuit Court the present term.

Prepare for the bills you have contracted during the month past, or perhaps several months ago.

Owing to the reduced fare on the O. C. R. R. on Sunday, Hillsboro proposes to attend the M. E. Church in Portland soon.

The Ladies' Sewing Society of the Presbyterian Church will meet to-morrow (Wednesday) at the house of Mrs. Babbitt at the usual hour.

Vigorous preparations are being made by the various county officers at the Court-House to vacate their present positions in favor of those who have been selected by the sovereign voice of the people to direct affairs for the next two years.

Mr. N. H. Lane, of East Portland, disposed to Mr. W. S. Gordon the house in which the City Board of Trustees holds its regular meetings, and also the one on the south side. The price paid was $3,200 cash. Certainly a low figure.

GRAND CELEBRATION.

As readers and the public generally will observe by reference to another column, there will be a grand celebration at East Portland on the Fourth. East Portland Park has been selected as the grounds. NEW TRIAL GRANTED.

JUDGE UPTON GRANTS THE MOTION FOR A NEW TRIAL IN THE CASE OF ROBERT GIBBENS, CONVICTED OF MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.

His Honor, Judge Upton, delivered the following opinion yesterday morning at nine o'clock, immediately on the convening of the Circuit Court

Judge Upton said: The defendant has been convicted of murder in the first degree, and the case has been argued and submitted to the Court on the defendant's motion for a new trial, based on the following grounds

1. Error in overruling the defendant's motion for a change of the place of trial.
2. Error in overruling the defendant's motion for a postponement of the trial.
3. Newly discovered evidence.
4. Insufficiency of the evidence to justify the verdict of the jury, and that the verdict is against law.

The points most strenuously urged in the argument of this motion relate to the rules prescribed by the Legislature in defining the crime of murder, and in drawing a line of distinction between murder in the first degree and murder in the second degree. This distinction has no existence independently of the statute, and its limits depend entirely upon the rules enacted by the Legislature. It is, therefore, necessary to have a correct understanding of the four sections of the statute, which create this distinction and embody the whole law defining it, in order to be able to give due consideration to the question touching the insufficiency of the evidence to justify the verdict, and the question whether the verdict is against law.

It is virtually conceded in the argument that the deceased, Officer Charles F. Schoppe, was, at the time of the homicide, in the lawful discharge of his duty, that he lawfully entered the building where the homicide was committed, and that while he was thus in the lawful discharge of his duty, the defendant, Robert Gibbens, purposely fired on him and killed him with a deadly weapon. The acts thus virtually conceded, constitute the crime of murder. Purposely using a deadly weapon in committing an unlawful homicide, of itself, raises a presumption of malice toward the party killed, and throws the burden of proof on the defendant to show that the killing was not murder. It is claimed on the part of the prisoner, that under the state of facts the burden of proof is still on the State to show that the offence is murder in the first degree, and that if the killing was not effected in the commission or attempt to commit rape, arson, robbery, or burglary, the State must prove that the design was formed and matured in cool blood. And it is claimed on behalf of the defendant that on the trial there was no evidence tending to show that the design to kill Officer Schoppe was formed and matured in cool blood.

Before reviewing the evidence, I will refer to the statutory enactments that define the distinction between murder in the first degree and murder in the second degree. They are as follows:

"Sec. 502. If any person shall, purposely and of deliberate and premeditated malice, or in the commission or attempt to commit any rape, arson, robbery or burglary, kill another, such person shall be deemed guilty of murder in the first degree.

"Sec. 503. If any person shall, purposely and maliciously, but without deliberation and premeditation, or in the commission or attempt to commit any felony, other than rape, arson, robbery or burglary, kill another, such person shall be deemed guilty of murder in the second degree.

"Sec. 504. If any person shall, by an act imminently dangerous to others, and evincing a depraved mind, regardless of human life, although without any design to effect the death of any particular individual, kill another, such person shall be deemed guilty of murder in the second degree.

"Sec. 515. There shall be some other evidence of malice than in the mere proof of the killing, to constitute murder in the first degree, unless the killing was effected in the commission or attempt to commit a felony; and deliberation and premeditation, when necessary to constitute murder in the first degree, shall be evidenced by poisoning, lying in wait, or some other proof that the design was formed and matured in cold blood, and not hastily upon the occasion."

If the last of these sections was the only statutory provision on the subject, it would lead to an inference that if the killing was effected in the commission or attempt to commit any felony, whether it was rape, arson, robbery, burglary or some other felony, the offense would, for that cause, be murder in the first degree; but the express words of each of the sections 502 and 503 entirely preclude any such inference, and under the law of this State there can be no question but that to convict of murder in the first degree there must be proof, either that the killing was effected in the commission or attempt to commit rape, arson, robbery or burglary, or that the design to kill was formed and matured in cool blood, and not hastily upon the occasion. The words of the statute harmonize in this respect with its evident spirit and intent, and with the reasoning upon which it is founded. As much as we may be shocked by the brutal murder of an innocent man, we cannot fail to recognize and admit a vast difference in enormity of guilt and depravity between an act of murder that is coolly planned and remorselessly carried out for purposes of gain or revenge, and a case where the murderous design springs up for the first time in the midst of excitement and passion, and is executed without time for reflection. Broad as this distinction is, both degrees of criminality are, under many Governments, punished alike with death. Every State is entitled to prescribe such just penalties as it shall approve. In some States the law demands life for life in every case for murder, and in others the death penalty is entirely abolished. In this State the law neither goes to the one extreme nor to the other. It has neither wholly abolished capital punishment, nor provided for its infliction in all cases of inexcusable homicide. Under the law as it is written, the man who in cool blood deliberately plans and perpetrates a murder, justly forfeits his life; in less atrocious cases the State has mercifully prescribed a different punishment.

Under this state of the law, if the verdict of the jury is not against law, the great question of life and death involved in this case, must turn on the point whether there was any evidence adduced before the jury tending to show that the defendant, Robert Gibbens, in cool blood, formed and matured a design to take the life of Charles F. Schoppe; for I do not conceive it to be the province of the court, on motion for a new trial, to undertake to determine whether the jurors correctly weighed conflicting evidence which was properly submitted to them. It is only where there is no evidence to support some essential finding of fact, or when the verdict is against law, that the court is in duty bound to disturb the verdict of the jury. The facts upon which there appeared to be no conflict of testimony are these:

The homicide was committed at about 9 o'clock of the evening, in a saloon kept by a woman, called by the witnesses Minnie, who, with two other women, Anna Miles and Nettie Walker, inhabited the house of which the saloon was a part. The defendant and one Patrick Fagan entered the saloon together, the defendant being more or less intoxicated, and Anna Miles, at their request, furnished to Fagan a glass of beer and to the defendant a cigar. A few minutes afterwards the defendant went out alone at the back door into a small enclosed area, and Fagan went up stairs, leaving Anna Miles alone in the saloon. Afterwards Anna Miles went to the back door and partly opening it saw the defendant outside the door in a sitting posture, and thereupon the defendant fired at her with a large revolver. She immediately ran by way of the front door of the saloon into the street. Shortly afterwards officer Schoppe entered the saloon by the front door, having no weapon except his official stick or "billet," and was almost instantly fired upon and killed by the defendant, the ball penetrating his heart. The saloon was lighted up at the time, and no other persons were in it. Persons who entered instantly after the fatal shot found the defendant and the deceased prostrate on the floor, ten or fifteen feet from the front door of the saloon, the deceased lying on the defendant, dead or in a dying condition. The defendant appeared for the time stunned or senseless, but revived immediately. The revolver lay at the defendant's right hand, and the officer's "billet" was at the right hand of the deceased. On the face and head of the defendant were fresh wounds or bruises. One chamber of the defendant's revolver (when examined on the day of the trial), was found to be entirely empty; two chambers contained the shells or cases of discharged cartridges, and the other three were charged. The condition of the revolver shows that if one chamber of the revolver was entirely empty at the time of the homicide, as it is now, the hammer must have been raised three times between the first and second discharges, or the cylinder must have been revolved by applying the hand. The defendant had purchased the revolver and a hundred cartridges on the evening of the previous day, and he declined to have the revolver charged at the shop where he bought it.

On some other important points of testimony there is not much conflict of evidence.

As to the length of time the defendant remained outside at the back door only two witnesses testified.

Anna Miles states that it was about seven or eight minutes.

Patrick Fagan says on this point: "Nettie had come in and asked me to treat. I said yes. The defendant said to her, 'you d—d Jewess you have no business here,' or 'you shan't have any;' and Nettie said, 'you bloody Mick I did not ask you to treat.' The defendant went out and I went up stairs, and just after I got into the room I heard a shot."

As to the time that elapsed between the first report of the pistol and the fatal shot, the evidence taken as a whole is quite definite, on this point witnesses gave their testimony as follows:

Anna Miles—As I opened the door the defendant fired at me. I ran back through the saloon [about 30 or 40 feet], and as I got to the corner of First street [about 30 or 40 feet further], I saw Schoppe run into the saloon. Just as he got in I heard the second shot.

Patrick Fagan—When I heard the first shot it was just after I got into the room. I ran half way down stairs and heard a voice in the hall say, "Clear out of here, you d—d s— of a b—, or I'll blow your brains out." I ran back and heard the second shot just as I got to the top of the stairs

F. Dekum—I heard the report of a pistol and went to the corner [about 30 feet], and saw a woman running up to the corner of Wetzel's [about 30 feet from the door of the Cozy saloon]. Schoppe rushed into the saloon and immediately I heard a second shot. Schoppe had just stepped in when the second shot was fired. He was walking fast when I saw him.

Officer Corcoran—I was at the corner on Pine street. When I heard a pistol shot I started back toward the corner of Oak [200 feet], but had not reached the corner before I heard the second shot.

A. D. Tafts—I heard the report of a pistol and started across the street and saw a woman running from the saloon. Schoppe went to the saloon, put his right hand to the door and went in. The door [which was self-shutting] had just about closed when the second shot was fired. After that I heard something that sounded like two licks, one after the other.

W. F. Galligher—I heard a pistol shot and saw a girl run out of the Cozy saloon. I was about 75 feet from the saloon. I did not see any one go into the saloon between the first and second shots. I followed Corcoran in and helped to raise Schoppe from off the defendant.

C. A. Wheeler—When the first shot was fired Mr. Schoppe was in front of Herrall's store, [—feet from the front door of the Cozy saloon]. He passed me on his way to the saloon. I saw into the saloon when Schoppe pushed the door open; when the second shot was fired, Schoppe had probably got five feet into the room. I heard the report just about as the door had got swung back.

In considering the period of time in question, if it be observed that a man traveling at the rate of four miles an hour will require between 17 and 18 seconds to walk a hundred feet, the time that probably elapsed between the first and second report of the revolver can be approximated.

Chief of Police Lappeus and Captain Brannan testified to a conversation had with defendant after his arrest, in which the defendant said he had killed this man and was sorry he had not killed two or three more.

It does not appear in evidence whether or not the defendant had any previous acquaintance with the women he met in the saloon, and Annie Miles, the only one of them who testified, says that she never saw him before. It is not shown whether he had previously met officer Schoppe.

"In passing upon the question whether there is any evidence tending to show that the design to murder officer Schoppe was formed and matured in cool blood, I am not unconscious of the weight and the respect that should always be given to the deliberate decision of a jury chosen in accordance with law to pass upon the case. I entered upon the investigation understanding the law to be that where there is no reason to believe the law has been misunderstood or misapplied the verdict of the jury is conclusive on all questions of conflicting testimony, and if I was sure that twelve jurors had found from this evidence directly upon the vital question of fact under consideration, I should have reason to distrust my own conclusions. It is barely possible that under misapprehension of the law jurors have rendered the verdict in this case without ever deciding this question of fact in their own minds. It was strenuously urged on behalf of the State, on the trial, and stated as law to the jury, that if the defendant had already committed a felony; as for instance, an assault with intent to kill, and was attempting to escape, the killing was for that reason, murder in the first degree. As the Court did not in instructing the jury, refer in direct terms to this statement of counsel, it is possible that the jurors may have taken the statement as law, notwithstanding the plain provisions of the statute, which were several times read in their hearing. If the jury, upon such ground, returned their verdict, believing that the design to kill the deceased was not formed and matured in cool blood, the verdict was against law. It was also stated to the jury in substance, that the felonious killing of a peace officer while in the discharge of his official duty, constitutes murder in the first degree, without proof that the design was formed and matured in cool blood. It is difficult to conceive that the minds of the jurors were not disabused of that idea, but it may possibly be the case.

It was also argued, both at the trial and upon the hearing of this motion, that if the defendant deliberately and in cool blood, designed and attempted to kill Annie Miles, and after that formed and executed the design to kill the deceased, the crime is for that reason murder in the first degree. It may be conceded that if a design had been formed and matured in cool blood to kill Annie Miles, and in attempting to execute it, a ball fired at her had killed officer Schoppe, the crime would for that reason be capital; but if the design to kill Annie Miles was formed as suggested, and after that attempt had failed a new design was formed hastily on the occasion to kill the deceased in order to effect the defendant's escape, the case would not be within the law defining murder in the first degree. There is much in the evidence that indicates to my mind, a case within section 504 of the statute, which provides for punishing "an act imminently dangerous to others, and evincing a depraved mind, regardless of human life;" and whether such depravity is caused by intoxication or otherwise, the law holds the act equally criminal, the intent to kill not being an essential ingredient of that particular crime. But if the defendant was in a mental condition to be capable of the cool deliberation referred to in the statute, or capable of reasoning, the circumstances do not tend to prove that at the time of the killing he was, or supposed he was, firing his weapon at Annie Miles.

When we endeavor to look at the facts uninfluenced by the abhorrence which all must feel at the commission of so reckless and atrocious an act; when we address our attention to the single inquiry whether the defendant in cool blood formed and matured the design to kill officer Schoppe, we do not find that he had previously had any intercourse with the deceased; he had no reason to expect to meet him at that place or on that occasion. It does not appear that the defendant had ever seen or known the deceased, or that he had ever heard of him until a moment before the fatal shot was fired, it does appear that a few seconds before he first met officer Schoppe the defendant had been a participant in a scene of excitement in which he had already discharged his murderous weapon, and not only himself had become excited, but the occurrence had excited the surrounding neighborhood so that various persons were hastening to the place at the very moment the defendant first saw officer Schoppe on that occasion, and probably for the first time in his life. To say that these circumstances tend to show that the defendant formed and matured the murderous design in cool blood, it seems to me, involves an impossibility.

We are called upon to administer the law as it is, not to alter it or change it, or to seek to remedy its defects or avoid its consequences. While I have no appreciation of that sentiment that holds the life of a malefactor more sacred than the welfare of the community and of the State, and which would for that reason deny the right of the State to prescribe the death penalty, I should abhor above all expression the thought of participating in an unlawful administration of the law for the sake of visiting what may naturally seem to be just retribution for an atrocious crime.

The evidence shows that the life of an estimable and valued citizen has been cut off prematurely, and without provocation or excuse, while he was in the midst of his usefulness and the vigor of his manhood, and while he was in the faithful discharge of his duties as an officer of the city, and it is most natural that indignation should be aroused at the shocking details of the crime. It is also true that the crime was committed under circumstances that would in most countries forfeit the life of the perpetrator; but in this State there is no law that will visit the death penalty upon the offender under the proofs adduced on the trial, and there is no true way to administer justice but to administer it according to law.

A new trial should be granted.

DEFENDANT PLEADS GUILTY.

When Judge Upton finished delivering his opinion, Mr Caples, counsel for defendant, arose and stated to the Court that his client was willing to waive the right of a new trial, providing he could be allowed to withdraw his previously entered plea of not guilty, and substitute in place thereof a plea of guilty, and allow the Court to establish the grade of crime. After some consultation the District Attorney stated that he would consent to do that, if they could be allowed to examine one or more witnesses in order to clearly advise the Court of the character of the murder, and to enable it to fix the grade. Consent was given by the Court to this arrangement Gibbens was then called and requested to rise, which he did. The Court then asked him if he desired to withdraw his plea of not guilty, to which response was made "I do, if it please your Honor." "What is your plea, Mr. Gibbens?" asked the Court. "Guilty, sir," replied the prisoner. Court was then adjourned until 1 o'clock Immediately on reassembling at the hour appointed, two witnesses were called by the prosecution—Anna Miles and officer Corcoran. These persons were examined at considerable length by counsel for the prosecution and cross-examined by the defense, and all the circumstances of the tragedy elicited. This was done merely to comply with the law, so that the Court might become formally acquainted with the particulars, know that a murder had been committed, and to enable it to determine the degree and affix the proper penalty. Further argument of the case was waived by opposing counsel, after the examination of the witnesses, and the case submitted to the Court. Judge Upton stated that there was no doubt as to a murder having been committed by the defendant. Judicial knowledge of the fact had been obtained from the witnesses just examined. He established the grade of crime as murder in the second degree, and next Wednesday morning he should pass sentence on the prisoner. Gibbens was then remanded to his cell to await his sentence.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

FIFTH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE OREGON AND WASHINGTON SUNDAY SCHOOLS, HELD AT PORTLAND, OREGON, JUNE 29, 1874.

The Convention assembled in the First Congregational Church at 7 30 P. M. The President being absent, the Convention was called to order by E. J. Northrup, Chairman of the Executive Committee. He was chosen President pro tem.

A. S. Abernethy was chosen Secretary pro tem.

The opening exercises consisted of singing, "Beautiful Zion," and prayer by Dr. Atkinson.

COMMITTEE ON ORGANIZATION.

The following named persons were appointed a committee on organization and will report persons for permanent officers at the next meeting: G. Shindler, W. A. Lewis, J. L. Barnard, Dr. Hall and Mrs. Pentland.

Mr. H. H. Northup then delivered a brief address in which he welcomed the delegates and others present, and expressed a hope that the time passed in the Convention would not be unpleasantly or unprofitably spent, and that the cause of Sunday Schools would be greatly promoted by the deliberations.

REV. DR. LINDSLEY

Then spoke for about thirty minutes upon the objects of the Convention, discussing the qualities and qualifications of a true Sunday School teacher, the various methods of teaching successfully and the means to be used in securing the one grand result which is the aim of every true Sunday School teacher and every Sunday School—impressing upon the young minds divine truth, and leading them up to the standard of Christian men and women and retaining them in the Sabbath School after they are grown up. There is danger that the Sabbath School will become a place of amusement or instruction upon a variety of topics, instead of having the one idea of "Son, daughter, give me thy heart," always sounding during the Sabbath School hours. The true minister can preach Christ and Him crucified year after year, and so the Sabbath School teacher should ever keep the one great idea before the minds of his pupils.

The present meeting, he said, was one in which representatives from the different schools came together for the purpose of encouraging, counseling and strengthening each other. Such a Convention could be made productive of much good, and he hoped that the time would come when all Christian denominations would meet together, and under divine inspiration the great sentiment of Christian unity should prevail.

The missionary aspect of the Sunday School was one of its most delightful characteristics, and connected with the influence it exerts on homes where no prayer had been heard, it was powerful enough to convert the whole generation of man after awhile.

CLOSING.

The audience then joined with the choir in singing "The Old, Old Story," announcements were made for to-day, the benediction was pronounced by Dr. Atkinson and the Convention adjourned until 9 30 A. M. to-day.

A GEM (?)

A precious stone lay unobserved,
Its worth could not be roughly guessed,
None gave the notice it deserved,
Because it was not neatly dressed.

A man in tattered garments, clothed
With kindest heart within his breast,
By ignorance and pride was loathed,
Because he is not better dressed.

Then, gentlemen, a warning take,
By such examples here expressed
And hurry, ere it be too late,
To JOSEPH KOHN'S and get well dressed.

It is dress that makes the man and the gentleman, and the cost is so very trifling every one should possess a suit of our elegant Cloth ing. J. KOHN,

HOW TWO [illegible] COLORED DARKIES EXPRESS THEIR IDEAS ABOUT CIVIL RIGHTS

A sapient looking Fayetteville darkey oscillating between twenty and twenty five summers overtook an old negro on the street the other day and wedging him in a fence corner proceeded to acquaint him with all the gorgeous provisions of the civil rights bill. A CRUSADE INCIDENT

WHY HE COULDN'T SHUT UP

One day last week as a band of crusaders stopped in front of a beer saloon in the West End a man stepped outside the door with uncovered head, whom the women took at once to be the proprietor He bowed to the ladies and smiled blandly which encouraged them to gather around and urge him to discontinue his nefarious traffic They asked him if he had any objections to their praying in front of the place He said he hadn't in the least After a prayer a crusader said they would like to sing a hymn He remarked "Sing away for all I care, and they sung. The man seemed affected Once or twice he took out his handkerchief and wiped his eyes

The services over the ladies feeling that they had, indeed, touched his heart, renewed their entreaties They spoke of the evils wrought by saloons, and depicted the suffering of the drunkard's family The man listened and bowed his head in apparent contrition His conscience was evidently at work There was a struggle going on within his breast between the sordid love of gain and the spirit of goodness, which is said wholly to never desert a man. At least so thought the ladies So they pressed upon him and renewed their entreaties

"Won't you" said one of the most earnest and importunate among the good women "won't you listen to our appeals and shut up?"

Then the man raised up his head His voice trembled as he essayed to speak, and there were traces of tears on his cheeks Said he "Ladies, you have moved me deeply I know as well as any one the evils of the traffic, and most gladly would I shut up this saloon, but—"

"But what?" cried all the ladies at once

"I could do it if it was not for one thing"

"What is that?"

"Taint my saloon!"

The ladies moved on without any policeman telling them to—Cincinnati Saturday Night

A PROFANE PRESBYTERIAN.—The particulars of the great heresy trial in Chicago of Professor Swing, are well known to the public Foremost among the prosecutors was the Rev Prof Patton editor of the Chicago Interior a paper which is considered one of the Presbyterian faith The proprietor of the paper is Mr C H McCormick, another strong Presbyterian, but who got a little profane the other day according to the Chicago Times The following extract from the Times explains itself

In the course of the trial Mr Loftus was put upon the stand, and rigidly cross examined by the defendant's counsel who by-the-way is himself a strong Presbyterian when the following conversation ensued

Question—Did you ever present this bill for payment?

Answer—Yes sir

Q—What did you say to Mr McCormick at that time?

A—I told him I would sue him if he did not pay it

Q—What did he say to that?

A—He told me to sue and be d—d that's all

This last answer somewhat shocked some of the defendant's friends who happened to be in court but it passed unchallenged by the jury who, doubtless, believed in the great doctrine that there are times in the lives of all great men when swearing is justifiable

A ROW BETWEEN SENATOR LOGAN AND ARCHITECT MULLETT.—A Washington special gives details of a personal difficulty which occurred on the 24th inst between Senator Logan and Architect Mullet, which was at one time reported to have culminated in blows

It appears that Hale & Co of Chicago filed a bid for putting elevators in the Boston Custom House, and being the lowest bidders and perfectly responsible, claimed the contract which Mullett refused them on the ground that he had promised it to friends in New York, and tried to put off Hale & Co with a promise to give them the contract for some work in the Chicago Custom House Hale & Co declined and being unable to get any satisfaction out of Mullett yesterday got Logan to go with them to see Mullett, who not only refused to do anything, but overwhelmed Hale with abuse whereupon Logan transferred matters to the Secretary of the Treasury's office, and while relating the matter to that official was interrupted frequently by Mullett, who, when Logan ended began to swear outrageously at him The Treasurer said he would not permit him or any other man to use profane language in his office or any other part of the Treasury building He also impressed on Mullett the fact that his insolence to visitors and especially to the Senator would be no longer tolerated, and a repetition of the scenes of that day would lead to the acceptance of his resignation.

MILITARY CHANGES IN ARIZONA.—Washington, June 25—The War Department has ordered the Twenty-third Infantry and Fifth Cavalry, now stationed at Arizona, to the line of Union Pacific Railroad in the Sioux country and the Eight Infantry and Sixth Cavalry now in the Sioux country have already started for Arizona the infantry going by San Francisco and the Colorado river and the cavalry to march overland by New Mexico some time during the summer This will make an entire change of the military in Arizona except that General Crook and staff will remain there

COMMENCEMENT AT YALE COLLEGE.—New Haven, Conn, June 25—To-day was the Commencement at Yale College There was a great crowd present in the city to witness the exercises which were unusually interesting At 9 A M a procession formed and marched to Center Church, where the exercises of the graduating class took place There were 211 graduates from the different departments The dinner was attended by about 800 persons, after which the corner stone of the Chapel was laid

In financial [illegible] the future [illegible] all [illegible] the full [illegible] trade [illegible] banks and other money lending [illegible] borrowers [illegible] accommodation [illegible] reasonable rates on articles security [illegible] apply The bountiful harvest which [illegible] sure [illegible] the certainty [illegible] in the market [illegible] of a failure

Under the new order [illegible] the words "United State legal tender note" and "Treasury note" are to be omitted in the future issues of greenbacks and the title changed to "United States note" The new $500 notes are [illegible] vignette of [illegible] Marshall on the right and on the left a [illegible] vignette of Peace The new $50 note will have vignette of Franklin and the Goddess of Liberty the latter being considered a remarkable specimen of engraving The new twenty five cent note will conform in size to the new ten cent of which the ten and fifty cent notes [illegible] in circulation and will be issued as soon as the Treasurer makes the [illegible] for fractional currency of this denomination [illegible] have been issued for the immediate preparation of a vignette of Charles Sumner

A Year's Coinage.

From our San Francisco exchanges we learn that the year's work at the U S branch mint in that city closed June 24th. The record for the year is one of much interest The mint was re-opened for coinage on the [illegible] July 187[illegible] when Mr Babcock assumed his duties as Coiner During the year he received and worked 2 110 111 ounces gold ingots and 4 070 952 ounces silver ingots. The bullion was converted into 1 [illegible] gold coins and 17 [illegible] silver coins The amount of work performed during the year is in excess of any previous year owing to the large proportion of silver manipulated There have been no half dimes coined since February 1873 when $16 500 was made During the year $2 600 000 in double eagles were made $120 000 in single eagles $1 5[illegible] 000 in half eagles $67 000 in quarter eagles To al gold coinage $22 [illegible] 000 Silver $2 120 000 trade dollars $241 000 half dollars $129 000 quarter dollars $[illegible] dimes Total silver coinage $[illegible] Grand total $[illegible] being an increase of $[illegible] over the year ending June 24, 1873

The coinage of Trade Dollars is comparatively a new feature Notwithstanding the large amount of coin turned out the Mint had to close for the annual settlement with orders unfilled During the fiscal year of 1871-72 the total coinage at the Mint was $18 71[illegible] of which $[illegible] was in Silver and the remainder in Gold against $18 616 77[illegible] for the year 1870-71, including $7[illegible] in Silver A year ago Silver coin was a drug in the market at [illegible] per cent discount The rate to day is ¼@½ of 1 per cent discount. The Mint will be opened for ordinary deposits on the 2d July but there will be no coinage until the 6th of July

The Fall Dry Goods Trade

So far this year there has been a fair trade reported for the season and prices are tolerably steady without any important change The present demand consists mainly of orders and these are not generally for large amounts but the aggregate is quite heavy for the season—in fact considerable in excess of the sales for corresponding periods in former years The New York Chronicle says of the prospects that the indications are that the opening of the fall trade will develop a marked advance in many grades The feeling prevails very generally at present that the business of the coming season will be more satisfactory than that of any of its predecessors for several years Goods will open rather low and as the confidence in the finances of the country which has been lacking for a long time is now returning there is every reason to hope that consumers will purchase with some freedom Much depends upon the crops which at present promise very favorably. A rising market is always the most satisfactory one to do business in, and if agents do not force up their goods with unwarranted rapidity, they will have the tendency in their favor throughout the season

Miscellaneous.

The British bark Powhattan an account of the disaster of which is to be found in the London dispatches of June 26th, left this port for Queenstown on the 13th of January or rather sailed out of the Columbia river on that date, She was under charter to E. Morgan & Sons and carried 12 [illegible] centals wheat valued on board here at $27 4[illegible]

It is now over two weeks since a wheat cargo was cleared for San Francisco This is the longest interval of the kind in over a year. The next vessel off will probably be the Thomas Dana This vessel registers 1 4[illegible] tons and will carry over 2,000 tons cargo She has already secured 1 000 tons flour and will complete cargo mainly with new wheat

The English wheat market at last mail dates looked quite strong The Mark Lane Express of June 1st reports a deficiency as compared with last year of 11 [illegible] quarters The anticipated supplies from France are not forthcoming It now turns out that the French markets are actually short especially in the southern part of France In some of these markets flour has recently advanced from [illegible] to 60s per sack and wheat has risen from [illegible] to [illegible] in the various markets on the continent From May 23d to the 31st thirty one cargoes of wheat arrived off the coast of England, with sales of twenty cargoes as follows California 55s 6d to 65s Chilian 53s to 61s Milwaukee 58s 6d to 60s per quarter

A HORRIBLE NARRATIVE!

[illegible] IN COLORADO KILL AND EAT THEIR COMPANIONS

One of the most horrible narratives ever related is that contained in the subjoined letter written to Mr Owen Noon of Salt Lake City by a friend at Del Norte Colorado The unfortunate men were some of many deluded by the false rumors of rich mines at San Juan in that Territory This is the terrible story

ADAMS DISTRICT San Juan Co, [illegible]
June 6 1874

Friend Noon I take a few minutes leisure to let you know that I am amongst the living and in good health I have been in the mines now three days and have struck two good ones with lots of ore in sight there are only twelve men in the camp

Now I will give you the particulars about George Noon, A G Packer, [illegible] Bell J Humphreys, J Swan and Frank Miller They started from the Indian camp to go to the Indian agency about [illegible] miles distant. In about ten days out Swan died and the remainder ate his body Six days later Humphreys died and he was eaten by the survivors In ten days more George Noon shot Frank Miller and soon after he was also devoured by those left Some time soon after this occurrence Bell shot George Noon whose body met the fate of those already eaten Next Bell attempted to kill Packer by striking at him with his gun, but Packer dodged the blow and Bell striking a tree broke the gun stock when Packer shot and killed him and was afterwards compelled to eat his body for want of food. Fourteen days later Packer the sole survivor of the party made the Indian Agency in a starving condition and from his sworn statement I send you the melancholy account contained in this letter

Yours truly

G. W DRIVER,
